

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The object of the invention is a process for diffusion of lipophilic molecules in an aqueous medium, in particular derivatives of the aryl-carboxylic family for the treatment of buccopharyngeal ailments, molecules with anti-inflammatory, anti-mycotic, central action analgesic or anti-allergic activity, characterized in that it consists in resorting to salts of these molecules. The invention also covers compositions and tablets implementing this diffusion process.